

The Blaster Disaster Tracking System is specifically designed for any organization, anytime, anywhere, any device, any emergency, and any disaster. Fire Captain Bobby Laster pioneered this innovative groundbreaking solution previously never seen. Captain Laster lead a group of several Los Angeles based fire captains and police officers, and high-ranking government officials that developed this multifaceted and unique system.

This system provides benefits to all of humanity during daily and emergency conditions – that includes victims after a major disaster. From the tragic events at Columbine High School in 1999 (Littleton, Colorado) to the Virginia Tech massacre in 2007, and the Sandy Hook Elementary School in 2013 (Newtown, Connecticut) – this innovation will assist with a rapid and coordinated exit strategy towards a safe-heaven.
